Because, she found a strong faith in the most questioning generation to date

Because, she understood our limitations and her own, but nevertheless found in herself and us a solid foundation on which to build a concept of excellence

Because, in the often frenzied hours of her work, she was never too busy to share an un-frenzied thought with us

Because, she genuinely loved people and added many wonderful memories to their lifetimes

Because, she did for this college in a short time what many thought a century could not accomplish

Because, she got us started . . .

For these and the many other reasons that find no expression in words, we dedicate this, the 1970 MOUND, to

Mrs. Ioan Stepp

May she bring half as much happiness into the new lives she will encounter.

About the Book

Perfect spacial layouts, many-times-refined headlines, and meticulously wrought out copy constitute a true masterpiece in the field of journalism. This masterpiece, however, does not make for a meritable yearbook if it is not representative of the people and times it is concerned with. In the academic year 1969-70, the editorial staff of the Mound found more to work with in the way of people and times and the at-times-explosive relationship contained therein, than ever before. Adrian College, like campuses all over the country, served as the laboratory for student concern not only with world affairs, but with community directed projects as well as with that ever-present search for a self-satisfying maturity. Contained in these pages is only a sample of the actions and reactions that exist in that unique atmosphere so blithely titled "College." The most this sample can hope to do is hint at what feelings surrounded life on Adrian's campus in the year 1970. Nonetheless, for what you were, where you were, when you were, take a look at the Mound, 1970.

ADRIAN COLLEGE

Chartered on March 28, 1859, Adrian College traces its origins back to a Wesleyan Methodist theological institute founded at Leoni, Michigan, in 1845. This institution later became Michigan Union College. Strongly antislavery in its sentiments, the school was moved to Adrian in 1859 through the efforts of the antislavery leader and educator, Rev. Asa Mahan, who was elected first president of the new Adrian College. The college was transferred to the Methodist Protestant Church in 1868, and here for 71 years, leaders of this denomination were trained. In 1939 a denominational union of American Methodism resulted in the establishment of the Methodist Church. Adrian College is affiliated with this great church body.

Tradition . . .

The story of North Hall goes back to the time Adrian College began in Adrian. Less than a month after the college was chartered, it established a building committee and by that summer of 1859 construction was under way.

The dark clouds of Civil War hung over the city, and within a year the residents of Adrian asked for and obtained permission to house the Fourth Regiment of the Michigan Volunteers.

The early buildings were the pride of the community. Judge Beecher in 1861 described them as "superior in every way to those of the state university," and a trustee committee in 1876 called them "a monument to the intelligence, good taste and liberality of the founders and patrons of the college."

But all was not favorable for long. On October 21, 1880, fire broke out in North Hall. The extent of the damage was great, but the extent of the ingenuity of the trustees was, too. The building was insured for $7,000, a large sum at the time, but not enough to remove the college's debt lingering from the Recession of 1873. The trustees used the North Hall fire as a starting point in raising funds, and were successful to the point that they took the college out of debt, and into good financial condition once again.

In 1904 electricity was introduced to the campus and to North Hall under the leadership at that time of Dr. Brayman W. Anthony of Castle Shannon, Pa. Ironically, 50 years later, another resident of Castle Shannon, Dr. John H. Dawson, assumed the presidency of Adrian.

Near the close of World War I, the building of many uses was called on again to house soldiers. This time the Student Army Training Corps, a group of student-soldiers, lived in North Hall from October to December, 1918. Several stayed on to graduate later, and they held a reunion on campus in 1969.

With the completion of new North Hall, a new era will start at Adrian, one in which every student will have new facilities in which to study and the pressing need to educate the modern youth will take place in modern surroundings—colored by a respect for the legions of persons who remembered North Hall and made Adrian's current role possible.

MR. GEORGE LAKE

MRS. IOAN STEPP

DR. MILES PEELE

"One of Adrian's Greats"

DR. MILES L. PEELLE, chairman of the Biology Department and a member of the faculty at Adrian College since 1936, announced his retirement this year. Dr. Peelle has served with distinction since he first accepted the offer to teach from President Harlan L. Feeman. In his retirement he will continue his work in Ornithology and will also be involved with plant collections and study. During the winter months he will work with the Babson Audubon Society in Babson Park, just outside Lake Wales in central Florida. Come summertime he will continue working with the National Audubon Society at Sarona, Wisc., near Superior.

During Dr. Peelle's 34 years at Adrian, the department has grown in size and strength, from a one-man operation with a first year equipment budget of $35 to a six man staff of dedicated teachers, each a specialist in his own right, each with a concern for the development of the individual student. Dr. Peelle himself is a living legend on Adrian's campus, and, in the words of the college president, "he has been recognized by his colleagues and students alike as a great teacher, a splendid scholar, a highly skilled counselor, and an exemplary Christian gentleman."

GEORGE LAKE, who started teaching English at Adrian in 1957, has two projects in mind for his retirement—in addition to some well earned rest. One is the continuation of a manuscript on symbology in grammar, a project many of his students have assisted him with down through the year. Another is the writing of some fiction, a project tied in directly with his coursework in such areas as Creative Writing, Shakespeare, Chaucer, and others.

MRS. IOAN STEPP, a person who has been respected and appreciated by students and faculty from the very first day she arrived on Adrian's campus in 1942, has also announced that she will be leaving Adrian College at the end of this year. Mrs. Stepp is currently serving as Director of Student Affairs. This is a job she does well, one which keeps her close to the students, and one which she admits hating to leave "because we're just getting into the challenges of this office." Her memories are legion. One concerns the time she served two years as College Nurse, and her first patient had a ruptured appendix, compounded by the fact he was a Czechoslovakian immigrant and was unable at that time to speak the language. But, through it all, she continued with high spirits and the students always appreciated her seemingly unlimited compassion and understanding.

In Memoriam

The pleasant memories of each year are mellowed with the realization that some of the persons who contributed to the Adrian College we know are no longer with us. Their memories will prove the values of their contributions.

DR. WILLARD TOUSSAINT, Professor of History, passed away May 18 at the age of 56. A member of the Adrian faculty since 1961, he was greatly respected for his knowledge and his understanding.

MR. LAWRENCE O. BARIL, Instructor in English, died early in the school year. He had been a member of the Adrian faculty since 1967 and was working on his doctorate at Michigan State University.

MRS. HAZEL M. HERRICK, Wife of Mr. Ray W. Herrick of Tecumseh, and the lady for whom Herrick Hall is named, died late in May after an extended illness. She was a close friend of many of the students of the College and attended many of the programs on campus.

Burlesque "camps" on Adrian's Doorstep

Sue Shelly's bright and bouncy style added special swing to the evening.

The risque, the racy and the riotous ran rampant on the stage of Dawson Auditorium as Cecil B. DeMille in association with S.A.C.C. presented Sue Snyder in Alan Rust's interpretation of Campus Burlesque. Beginning with a bevy of buxom Burly Cuties and Snoz's snide sidelines, the show stripped down to the bare essentials of humor and satire to frolic through bawdy blackouts, precocious puns, campy comedy and vaudevillian vehicles, successfully exposing to Adrian its interpretation of a theatre era gone by.

S.A.C.C. Artist Series

S.A.C.C., otherwise known as the Student Affairs Central Committee, under the direction of Mrs. Stepp, sponsors a major event a month. From freshman welcome week to homecoming, Greek Week, Winter Carnival, exam study breaks, movies, variety show and artist series, S.A.C.C. is instrumental in keeping the campus up-to-date activity-wise. This year's highlights were the versatile Brothers Four (left), Sam and Dave turning Adrian "right on" to the funky chicken, and the Spinning Wheels of the Blood, Sweat, and Tears (below).

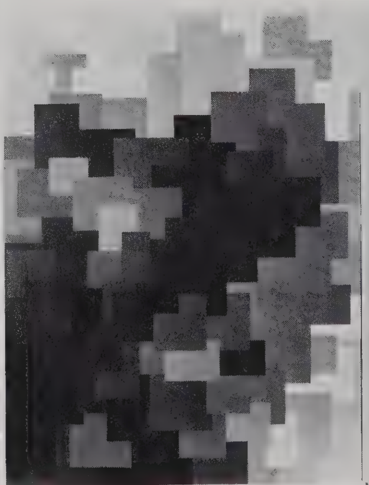
Wins statewide art award

←Doug Hay, a senior in art, shown with Department Chairman Mike Cassino, last fall won the first prize award in statewide collegiate art competition at Saginaw Valley College. His entry "Autumn Leaves" (left) was done in autumn hues of orange, yellow and brown.



John Hawley proved in 1910 that it is easy to get to first base in college, especially if you happen to play that position on the ball team. Classy uniforms and rah-rah spirit lead the team to Adrian's usual sporadic victories and defeats. What really matters, though, is not whether you win or lose . . . and Adrian's athletes have always played the game in high style. The good sport is the Adrian lettterman—versatile and growing. The game is played and the outcome is not only campus concern, but individual satisfaction.

Challenging Bulldogs score, impress, improve

The relatively young Bulldog football team moved into game experience this fall and although they did not come out above .500, they were "seasoned" well by Defiance, Alma and other tough midwestern teams. Most of the snags the Bulldogs hit were not due to being out-conditioned by opposing teams, but rather, out-personneled.

Cagers tangle with

Three returning lettermen provided the nucleus of Adrian's basketball team this year. Additional varsity returnees, two transfer students, and seventeen freshmen rounded out a team strong in spirit. Lacking height the cagers made up in quickness, but were not quick enough to capture a winning season.

Excerpt from The College World

Adrian has passed through a most successful season in the field of forensic debate. We cannot help but realize this when we understand that more interest and enthusiasm has been displayed by the student body than ever before. (That's debatable?)

Professor Black, to whose zeal and enthusiasm is attributed the forensic attainments of the year, states that, "The value to the student of participation in this activity lies not only in the fact that through this medium students are trained to speak correctly, forcefully, and effectively but also that they are trained at the same time to think logically, persistently and intelligently."

organizations

An ounce of Adrian is worth a Mound of events.

BOB BERGNER, Photographer

The Mound's office crumbled with the last bricks and dust of North Hall. We supposed it to be symbolic or perhaps even a broad hint. In either case, the staff did its best to relocate and continue to observe Adrian's activity—both past and present.

A college itself functions almost as a large club, incorporating many different areas of interest into a multi-faceted institution. The activities initiated, the goals achieved and the standards set are of no significant value unless they can be recorded and kept for future reference and learning. This, then, is the role of a yearbook and it's staff—to act as secretaries and historian for the "college club" and to offer the minutes of Adrian's academic, social and religious "meeting" of minds.

Rush, and everyone has to decide, in the manner of Jackie Kennedy, whether or not to "go Greek." Anticipation and nervous excitement mount until the Union explodes on bid day with screaming, shouting bodies declaring their choices. This is only the beginning of many activities that involve Greeks on campus. Phi Kaplympics (opposite page) is a major event for sororities in which the girls are challenged to prove their prowess in sloshing through the mud, swinging mackerels, cracking eggs and the art of remaining gorgeous in the face of whipped cream.

Greek Week

Three-legged race . . . pogo sticks, roller skates, tricycles . . . rope pull . . . can piling . . . log sawing . . . kite flying . . . bed race . . . all add up to skinned knees, tired feet, sore hands, but high spirits for a Greek Week. Promoting competition as well as camaraderie, Greek Week not only strengthened Panhellenic and Interfraternity bonds, exemplified by the end-of-the-week banquet, but had a philanthropic purpose in mind with admission charged for Spring Sing going to a memorial fund for a community swimming pool.

Linda Kinney and Marlene Yoder prove that 3 legs are better than 1.

Heave-ho and away go the Alpha Sigs with first place in Rope Pull.

Stick-to-it-iveness gives TKE the "jump" on things.

Sigs rally to victory in weekend contest.

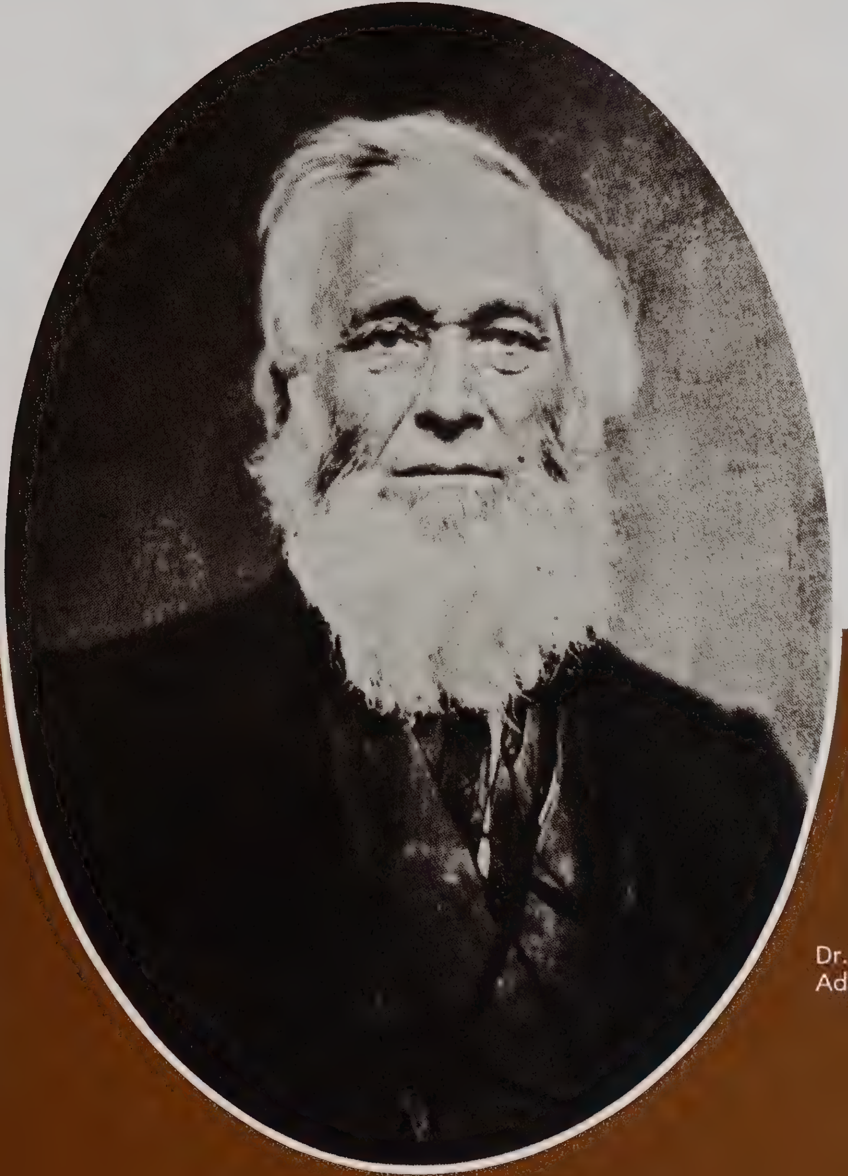
Doctor of Divinity and Professor of Mental and Moral Science, Asa Mahan served as president of Adrian College twice, with a leave of absence in the interim, during which time it is said he advised President Lincoln on matters of the day.

Although it is easy to deem figures from the past as ancient not only in age but in ideas, Asa Mahan was very much concerned with the signs of the times, and by today's standards, he was very liberal, even radical. He was instrumental in promoting coeducation which was as significant in the 1800's as integration of race is today.

In his first commencement address, Dr. Mahan proposed that "the mind should be taught to regard all subjects as proper for its notice which claims our attention or demands action in life." His ideas formed Adrian's founding principles . . . education yesterday and today, both with the same ideals, both achieving excellence.



Dr. Asa Mahan
Adrian's First President

faculty

Dear Faculty, Students, and Friends:

It is most appropriate that this issue of the Mound be dedicated to the memory of old North Hall. No other facility in Adrian's distinguished history has proven more versatile in the varied usages to which it was put, during 110 years of its existence on this campus.

Every generation of Adrian's students to date have felt its presence and the vast majority found reason to make use of its facility during their days at their alma mater. Prior to the year 1942, and for nearly a half century, the college library, the administrative offices, dormitory rooms for men on the second and third floors, classrooms, and faculty offices for the humanities, social sciences, religion, philosophy and psychology were all housed within its venerable walls.

Old North Hall was this college's campus landmark, long to be remembered and revered. New North Hall rises on the site of its predecessor to carry forward a splendid tradition. However, for many of us—alumni, faculty, students, and friends—warmly pleasant memories of hours spent in old North Hall will endure a lifetime.

The quest for knowledge is age-old. Although the times are changing and things to be learned have multiplied at a fantastic rate, basic truths have remained the same. The realization of these truths and of life itself through education is, as it has always been, in the hands of the instructor. What tomorrow becomes depends on the way events, past and present, refract from the educator to the student. Teaching requires an open mind, a sensitivity to life and a sincere concern for the future. It is a responsibility and these are the people who meet it.

The September Scene

Sat.	13	Freshmen begin to arrive.
Sun.	14	They meet their roommates, see Adrian, and spend the rest of the day writing long letters home.
Mon.	15	Maggie Clark arrives with (four) steamer trunks, five suitcases, footlocker, hatbox, three bags, goldfish bowl and purse. Football players delighted to carry things to Estes, 5th floor.
Tues.	16	Upperclassmen arrive for the academic purpose of checking out Estes, Jarvis, and Cargo. Dance in evening. Michigan students exclaim "Everyone here is from Ohio" and vice-versa. The rest belong to Pittsburgh.
Wed.	17	Dr. Pollard addresses student body. Delicious Saga supper. President's reception. Cookies disappear in mysterious quantities from punch table. Switchboard swamped with calls home.
Thur.	18	Registration continues and classes begin. Everyone joins clubs so they can have Saga banquets instead of regular meals. A number of freshmen report they cannot find Jones 110, registrar's office, counselor, dining hall, dorm . . .
Fri.	19	Freshmen find out what shaving cream and water can be used for and what a fraternity party is.
Sat.	20	A few miss breakfast. First football game. Freshmen show class spirit. Freshmen girls introduced to panty raid. Weekend entitled "What are hours?" or "Late minutes can be fun."
Sun.	21	Everyone sleeps through the only church service in the chapel on Sunday, and right through the sit down meal. Burger Ranch does a booming business. College life has begun.

That "Soph" Touch

"Bama-a-Rasha! Bama-a-Rasha! Allagaree-garime! What's the matter with Nineteen Nine?
Proxie, Moxie, Green and White. We're the class that's out of sight!
Bam-a-Rasha! Bam-a-Rasha! Zip Zoo Zine
Nothing's the matter with 1909!

Nineteen-nine was a swinging year for the sophomore class on Adrian's campus, and, following (tradition), the sophomore class of nineteen sixty nine is "out of sight," too. The "soph" touch was evident in everything this year, from S.A.C.C. to the Winter carnival. It's an active but still unsure time. Independence has just been established and the next big decision is what to do with life. The answer usually is "Stay at Adrian and become a junior because Survey of the Bible won't transfer anywhere else."

Class of 1971

By this time, majors are declared and the Adrian junior is making happy progress toward his goals of the future, not letting the fact that he only has 7 honor points and needs to introduce 103 more cultural events into his life in nine short months to graduate as a world-wise senior.

In 1920, the big campaign on the campus was "Can the Kaiser" as students felt a growing solitude about world peace. This year has been no different, with many students found in "drafty" situations, their concern mirrored by the faces of juniors involved in the Biafra campaign and war moratorium, altogether tuned in, turned on, and on top of campus events.

That was the year that . . .

. . . the canary and black Bulldogs outplayed arch-rival Hillsdale to a 0-0 tie and "moral" victory.

. . . Miss Nannie Butts was Dean of Women.

. . . the Michigan College Press Association selected Adrian for possible membership.

. . . the J. C. Penney Co. assured freshmen women that they had "The frocks for making whoopee."

. . . Pussyfoot Johnson, noted speaker on prohibition, addressed Adrian's campus.

Bright promise of future is senior goal . . . Adrian graduates 200 plus

There is a serious side to this college business, and the last year is hopefully one of realization, purpose, and determination. Having passed through the frivolous freshmen stage, sage sophomore and jesting junior, the senior is a beacon of versatility and knowledge—ready for fortunes, fancy, wisdom, whimsy and, most of all, the responsibility and challenge of tomorrow's world.

Adrian is no longer the college but the alma mater, and the years spent in study will, in years to come, be looked back upon as those "days of wine and roses."

Horse liniment, electrical cures for obscure diseases and anything in the tonsorial line was offered by downtown Adrian in the 1800's. Though the needs have changed and Model T economy has been replaced by the streetcar, and the streetcar by the station wagon, the community still provides the valuable service of commerce, recreation and sustenance for everyday life. These merchants are very much a part of the college scene and integral to the community, meeting the needs of many, serving the interests of all.

Come grow
With us

As Michigan grows and prospers, life grows better for each generation. Consumers Power is growing, too, as it supplies ever greater amounts of electricity and natural gas to industry and people. Growth brings challenge. We must find new and better ways to perform our services. Nearly 11,000 men and women of Consumers Power enjoy meeting the challenge every day.
Come grow with us!
